BOYS MADE SCHOOL REPAIRS
Supt. Young Tells of Successful Undertaking in Training in St. Johnsbury.

(From Journal of Education.)
In the spring of 1915 the Board of School Directors of St. Johnsbury, Vermont, decided to try an experiment. It had recently instituted a very strong course in manual training, and the pupils under capable supervision had done excellent work, not only in the workshop, but in handling the several jobs around the school buildings. The suggestion was made that the boys could do the repair work on the school building during the summer vacation. This idea took root and the details were carefully discussed with Leon H. Baxter, the director of manual training. The upshot of the whole matter was that Mr. Baxter was engaged to organize a squad of boys and supervise the work to be done, under the specifications provided by the Board of School Directors.

Twenty boys, averaging about fourteen years of age, were selected from the eighth and ninth grades. Size, general efficiency and willingness to work were the determining factors in making the selection. If it had been possible to use them we could have had a splendid help for the possibility of working during the summer under supervision appealed to the boys, and they set about the task with great alacrity and enthusiasm.

It was not possible to use twelve boys all the time, consequently they were often taken in squads of six or eight. The number twelve was fixed upon because it was thought that some would tire of hard labor and that consequently the numbers would soon dwindle to seven or eight. In the end, however, all twelve were used. During the seven weeks of hot summer weather every boy "stuck to his job." Not a single one quit. Not one was ashamed to carry his dinner pail, wear overalls, soil his hands or be seen at honest work. The financial reward was not great, only one dollar a day, but the boys enjoyed the labor and were eager to gain the experience.

The repairs to be made were diversified in character, varying from building a wire fence to concrete work. For example: The lowest bid to construct a wire fence around the school building was $500. This was done by the boys for $360, a considerable saving. The total cost of material and labor for all repairs amounted to $1,135. One gratifying feature of this experiment was that not only was the Board of School Directors satisfied with the quality and quantity of the work done, but parents and taxpayers universally approved, and were pleased to see the boys, who otherwise would be idle, busily and profitably employed.

We quote from the special report of Mr. Baxter to the board of directors, amount of repair work done on one building:—

"At the Summer Street School we made the following repairs and improvements: (1) A 275 foot post and wire fence in front of the school building. (2) Four sets of concrete steps. (3) Built and filled a 7 1/2 x 12 foot sand box. (4) Painted the old fence on Winter street. (5) Reset iron playbars in concrete. (6) Repaired board fence on line. (7) An eighteen foot concrete walk with four steps to grade from the front of the school building to street level. (8) New fence from these steps to driveway entrance, and painted to match original fence. (9) Tore down old fence on front and left side of girls' playground and replaced with new painted sumac fence, about 225 feet long. (10) Two sets of lockers, providing for forty boys. (11) Graded in some places in rear of school by fence. (12) Built tool room in shop." Approximate cost $500, of which $120 was for wire.

"The successful planning and management of the work, and for inspiring the boys with a desire to do their best, full credit must be given to Mr. Baxter. In conclusion I will say that our experience has shown to us that well equipped manual training department can do the general repair work not only more economically than it could otherwise be done, but that the boys gain valuable practice in the use of tools and come to respect more highly the dignity of labor."

VERMONT'S BETTER WAYS

Spirit Which Never Surrenders Banner to Opponent or Competitor Try For Advertising Sermon By Big Agency.

N. W. Ayer & Son, the large advertising house of Philadelphia, in advertisement of its own business in "Printers Ink," use Vermont as a text, and the following to say about the state and some of its industries:

"There seems to be a multitude of cases to prove that Vermont has found a way of doing things far in advance of the average, but probably the most unique instance was the way the Vermonters settled upon a new name for Wilmersburg, a quarter century ago. "That name did not please the townfolk because 'it had never sounded uncouthly and long' so the records run. Interest being about equally divided between 'Holden' and 'Barre' as a substitute, they hit upon a boxing match as an original method of settling the dispute. It so happened that the 'Barre' champion won and 'Barre' the town has been ever since, now famous as the world's leader in the manufacture of paper."

Vermont Joins the Great 13.

"Going back to the days before the revolution, Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain Boys believed there was a better way than King George's method of governing their part of the world, and the name of the great Jehovah and the Continental Congress, they proceeded to carry out their belief. So, after quelling all sorts of internal and external disturbances, Vermont was the first state to be added to the original thirteen."

"To the vast majority it never occurs that there must be a better way of doing most of the things we have to do. But many of the exceptions to that rule have come from Vermont."

"If it had not been for Thaddeus Fairbanks we might still be trying to weigh a ton of hay or a battleship by the old 'steel yards' method. Thaddeus Fairbanks went into the hemp business in 1824 and decided that it was a pesky nuisance to weigh all his hemp after the manner then in vogue. So, he set out to find a better way.

The Platform Scale.

"Inside of six years he had perfected his platform scale and patented it. For which notable achievement he was rewarded by the emperor of Austria, and now all the peoples of the earth abide by the standards of the Fairbanks scales of St. Johnsbury, Vt.

"Dean Richmond was not entirely satisfied with the mode of travel which prevailed in his early days. He believed there must be a better way than rumbling ponderously up hill and down dale in the old stage coach rolling on its leathers. Thus the great New York Central railroad was founded by Dean Richmond of Vermont, where those first railroads followed astoundingly the old, crooked Indian trails."

"Alvin Adams knew there must be a better way than freight by which to transport packages, and the famous express company which bears his name is the living illustration of Alvin Adams' 'better way'."

"In the industrial world there are many examples of Vermont's superior achievements."

The Estey Pipe Organ.

"At Brattleboro they have mastered the art of making pipe organs the 'better way,' and Estey organs are making music for all nations."

"In Burlington, the Wells Richardson company's Diamond Dyes have taught the women of every country a better way to economy and good taste in dress."

"Vermont's manufacturers have evidently inherited from their ancestors the spirit which never surrenders the banner to opponent or competitor. They are walking away with the colors in many an industrial field, and the only point lacking is the publicity."

At a Probate Court, holden at St. Johnsbury within and for said District on the 15th day of November, A. D. 1915, an instrument purporting to be the last Will and Testament of Laura M. Dana, late of Peacham, in said District, deceased, was presented to the Court and read.

And it is ordered by said Court that the 4th day of December, A. D. 1915, at the Probate Office in said St. Johnsbury, be assigned for proving said instrument; and that notice thereof be given to all persons concerned, by publishing this order three weeks successively in the Caledonian, a newspaper circulating in that vicinity, in said District, previous to the time appointed.

Therefore, you are hereby notified to appear before said Court, at the time and place aforesaid, and there in said Court, to object to the granting of such license, if you see cause.

Given under my hand at St. Johnsbury, in said District, this 15th day of November, A. D. 1915.
